21-DAY WORKOUT

The below calendar shows an example of a progressive workout routine that will help you make significant progress in strength and fitness over a 21-day period. The daily workout is comprised of three exercises: push-up, crunch, and dip. In order to provide adequate recovery time, it is recommended that you take a day off in between each session. Over time, the number of sets and repetitions will increase as you get stronger. If the suggested sets and repetitions progress too quickly for your fitness level, make sure you adjust the plan to maintain a level that you are comfortable with. If the suggested program is below your current fitness level, bump yourself to the later workouts in order to challenge your muscles. Beginners can spend 1-2 minutes recovering in between sets. Advanced users may want to reduce recovery time to 20-30 seconds. Always use common sense when exercising.
